

I was born in Italy in a cute city called Modena in 1986; I was born on a date you can't forget, the day the Chernobyl nuclear power plant exploded: 26/04/86.

I was officially introduced into the music business in 2011, with the symphonic metal band Sleeping Romance. We released two album together, one in 2013 through Uterium Records and one in 2017 through Napalm Records. I played around Europe for almost 10 years, then I decided it was time for me to close that chapter of my life, so I quit the band in 2019.

In 2015 I started teaching singing, a vocation that came naturally since I have never stopped learning from the age of 14 and I studied both modern and operatic singing [I am a soprano leggero if you are wondering]. Now I have my own vocal coaching's studio in my hometown and I have a beautiful class of amazing students.

During these years I toured pretty much, and I performed and collaborated with several artists (Serenity, David Ellefson, Mortemia, Frozen Crown etc.) you can check some of them in my gallery.

In 2019 with the mastermind of Frozen Crown, Federico Mondelli, I founded the band of modern metal Volturian; we released our first album Crimson that year and then our second one Red Dragon in 2022 (Scarlet Records/Marquee Avalon).
